Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 24 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Heavy showers and thunderstorms for southern UK today.

Today:
Fine, very warm and dry for many, though cloudier in some North Sea coastal areas. Cloudier and more unsettled over southern UK where some heavy showers and thunderstorms at times, particularly first thing and again this afternoon.

Tonight:
Early evening showers and thunderstorms over southern UK slowly easing, most regions then dry with clear spells overnight. Showery rain may affect parts of southeastern UK overnight though. Warm again.

Sunday:
Fine, very warm and dry for many, though some North Sea coastal areas cloudier. Heavy showers and thunderstorms will affect parts of southern UK, especially East Anglia and southeast England.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Scattered showers and thunderstorms on Monday, these more widespread on Tuesday and Wednesday. Temperatures generally close to normal with light or moderate winds for most places.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.